The publisher of the Hawaiian Chinese News has our thanks for a copy of the Chinese and Hawaiian Directory, printed in red and black on a broadside. There are vignettes of Chinese marine scene and a land scene with pagoda in the upper corners, and the whole work is a real curio.

Some surprise was felt on Sunday that the Honolulu Rifles did not attend church parade at Kaumakapili. The explanation has been given that they were summoned to muster two hours too early, and Captain Ashford could not think of detaining them so long, therefore dismissed them.

This paper was wrongly informed that the state carriage, made to the order of the King, was taken on board the Zealandia for Samoa. It was left behind on account of the impossibility of landing the ambassador at Apia, capital of the group. Besides those mentioned as having gone, also, there should have been named Mr. Kanoa, interpreter, whom the HERALD previously mentioned as to be sent. D. Moehonua and Hiram constituted the body guard of the Ambassador, Mr. Bush.

Funeral Notice.

The funeral of the late John Lishman will take place this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from Fort-street Church. Friends and acquaintances are respectfully invited to attend.

Fatal Accident.

A man named Hookano, while returning from fishing at Waialae, Maui, one day last week, fell over a precipice and was killed. Mr. Thos. W. Everett, sheriff, on ascertaining the circumstances, did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest, being satisfied that the man's death was accidental.

A FAREWELL FEAST.

resentation and Collation to Mr. P. M. Sass by the Officers of the I. I. S. N. Co.

About eight o'clock last evening a well-spread table in the large hall of the Club House Dining Rooms was approached by the officers of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company and a few invited friends. Captain Bates, of the steamer W. G. Hall, presided, having on his right the guest of the evening, Mr. Peter M. Sass, superintending engineer of the company, and on his left Mr. John M. Sass, now manager of the People's Ice and Refrigerating Company but formerly captain in the Inter-Island Co.'s service who brought down the pioneer steamer of the line, the James Makee. Captain Freeman, of the Iwalani, occupied the post of vice chairman at the opposite end of the table. The rest of those who filled the seats around the festive board were the following: R. N. Webster, wharf freight clerk; W. Johnston, chief engineer of the W. G. Hall; Mr. Keech, a former officer of the company; Harry Wootton, second engineer of the W. G. Hall; Chas. Wall, chief engineer of the C. R. Bishop; Henry Lamson, second engineer of the Waialeale; Wm. White, purser of the C. R. Bishop; Captain Campbell, of the James Makee; Captain Chaney, of the C. R. Bishop; L. M. Everett, mate of the Jas. Makee; C. H. Everett, purser of the C. R. Bishop; B. Norton, chief engineer of the James Makee; F. Carson, mate of the C. R. Bishop; Fr. McGuy, second engineer of the C. R. Bishop; Louis Mark, second engineer of the Jas. Makee; Joshua Hilbus, first officer of the W. G. Hall; Jas. McLean, company blacksmith; H. Von Holt, of the Oceanic Steamship Co.'s office; John Thompson, chief engineer of the Iwalani; Henry Nye, first officer of the Iwalani, and representatives of the three English daily papers.

There was a tempting lay-out of meats, salads, cake and champagne wine, but before anything was touched the chairman standing up read an address to the guest of the evening, in brief but cordial terms, stating the appreciation in which he had always been held by the officers of the company, expressing regret at his contemplated early departure from the country, with their warmest wishes for his future welfare, and begging him to accept a gold watch and chain as a token of their esteem.

Mr. Sass in a neat speech suitably acknowledged the handsome present, saying he should always treasure it as a memento of the kind regard of his other officers. On the inner case of a watch the inscription is engraved, "Presented to Peter M. Sass by the Officers of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, December 27th, 1886." With its massive gold chain it is a gift of princely style.

After the presentation the victuals were subjected to vigorous demolition for some time but without at all exhausting the supply, and then a series of toasts, speeches and songs pleasantly engaged the party till after ten o'clock. Among the healths drunk were those of the King; the absent President Mr. Fos; Secretary Mr. Ena and Superintendent Mr. Godfrey; the Oceanic S. S. Co., I. I. S. N. Co., officers of the latter collectively and singly, the guest of the evening, the United States, the two million loan, Mr. John M. Sass, the press and the ladies. Songs were sung by Messrs. Webster, Von Holt and Hilbus, and the gathering broke up singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Mr. P. M. Sass, the recipient of such signal marks of esteem from his fellow officers, has been in the service of the I. I. S. N. Co. for eight years, having come here as second engineer on the James Makee, rising to the position of superintending engineer of the line two years ago. He shortly leaves the Kingdom to make a home for himself in Humboldt county, California, where he lived before coming to this country.

Incipient Fire.

Mr. Horace G. Crabbe, day keeper of the Police Station, went home on Christmas Eve about 10:30 o'clock, and after enjoying his pipe about ten minutes on the front stoop went to the pantry on a foraging expedition. When he opened the kitchen door he was almost knocked down by a thick volume of smoke that burst from the apartment. Crawling in on his hands and knees he found that his cook had placed in the oven a quantity of wood to dry, which had taken fire and a burning coal had fallen out and was just beginning to ignite the floor. He put out the fire without much difficulty, but considers he had a narrow escape from losing his house.

The Bulletin explains that the Palama serenaders of Christmas Eve were past Reformatory School pupils and retired members of that institution's band.

Christmas Chimes.

Honolulu, it is safe to say, had never a much more enjoyable Christmas Day, for those who know how to use a holiday as not abusing it, than Saturday last.

Among the more notable events, and which will be historical, was the holding of divine service for the first time in new St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral. There were celebration of holy communion and the regular Christmas service held by both congregations, Bishop Willis officiating for the Cathedral congregation and Rev. Geo. Wallace for the second congregation. Rev. A. Mackintosh and Rev. Herbert A. Gowen assisted at all the services. The chancel, that has been very comfortably fitted up for worship, pending the construction of the bays, was beautifully decorated for the occasion. All the offerings of the day were for the building fund and aggregated $325.45.

The Christmas celebrations at the Roman Catholic Cathedral were imposing in the vast congregation as well as the impressive ceremonial, the music led by the choir and band of St. Louis College being grand.

Large congregations attended the morning and evening Christmas services Sunday of both the Fort-street and the Bethel Union congregations. They were all marked by fine singing, and those of the Sunday schools evinced the most careful training in recitations and music.

There was an overflowing audience in the basement of Kaumakapili church on Saturday evening, at the concert for the building fund held under the patronage of Princess Liliuokalani. A splendid programme of native singing, with guitar accompaniment, was given. His Majesty was in the audience. His Excellency P. P. Kanoa, Minister of Finance, and Hon. Junius Kaa, Registrar, joined in a quintette that was rewarded with great applause.

Sunday morning a congregational meeting was held in Kaumakapili, when, besides the pastor Rev. J. A. Waiama, His Excellency L. Aholo, Minister of the Interior, and His Majesty delivered addresses. The King's Own attended as a guard of honor. There was a counting of contributions from the different districts of the congregation for the building fund, which showed an aggregate of $800.25 collected since the last previous similar meeting. The King was greeted with much applause and occasional peals of laughter during his speech.

Kawaiahao church had its regular quarterly Sunday school exhibition Sunday.

One of the best open air concert ever given in Honolulu was that of the Royal Hawaiian and Reformatory School bands, assisted by the Kawaiahao church choir, at Emma Square on Christmas afternoon, before a large audience.

Christmas Day wound up at dark with a bustle round the Post office over the arrival of twenty-five bags of mail by the S. S. Zealandia from San Francisco, and of course subsequent poring over all sorts of news from far countries.

Y. P. C. T. U. Festival.

Last evening more than eighty little hearts were made happy, through the generosity of the W. C. T. U. and the active interest in children's welfare of Mrs. T. S. Southwick, superintendent of that body's juvenile department. In the front division of Fort-street Church parlors the junior branch of the Young People's Christian Temperance Union were treated to a Christmas tree festival, and treated each other and their friends to a pleasant entertainment. Mrs. Southwick was assisted by Mrs. Dr. Gray and Mrs. Simpson, the latter furnishing piano accompaniment to the singing. Since yesterday morning the ladies had constructed a fine Christmas tree and loaded it with the treasures so eagerly desired by young people at all times, but fondly expected as their right at this season. The number given above corresponds with the presents given from the tree, and cakes and candy were liberally dealt out to them besides. Mr. T. S. Southwick officiated as Santa Claus, his disguise and the fictitious snow flakes he shook off his shaggy coat evincing an intimate acquaintance with the latitude of Winnipeg. The singing and recitations of the children were excellently rendered. The room was prettily decorated with festoons of vines and bouquets of fresh flowers.

In reality the juvenile branch now constitutes the whole organization of the Y. P. C. T. U., the senior body having lapsed during Mrs. Southwick's recent prolonged visit to the Coast. This branch is, however, in a very flourishing condition, and it is to be hoped will never be allowed to decline, as the safe piloting of young people up the "slippery paths of youth" will tell more on the morals of the next generation than any amount of reformatory influences brought to bear on the same persons after maturing in neglect.

Police Court.

The list of Christmas overdrafts before Judge Bickerton yesterday was a formidable one. It appeared, however, as if most of the delinquents had carried $6 in a separate pocket from their whiskey fund, as the forfeiture of bail far outnumbered the fines.

S. Dayley, H. Christopher, Wm. Snow, W. Crutos, Hoomuu, Iaco, Kahela, Punikala, Kalaaukapa, Lewai, Kimo, Kekai, Kamakae, Joe Williams, O. Grudh, Keaka and Kahanana each forfeited $6, and O. Hansen $10 bail; while Pauaka, Ahewa, Lauala, Keoki Umi and Kailanu were each fined $6 including costs, and Albert Bray, an old offender, $10—an aggregate of $152 in penalties for drunkenness.

Larlaren forfeited $15 bail for affray. Jas. Fogue, his partner in the trouble, was remanded till to-day.

Kimo forfeited $15 on the same charge, while Kaubini, who was alleged to have been fighting with him, stood his trial and was discharged.

T. Crowley was fined $7 for assaulting a native man and wife.

Geo. Howard forfeited $15 bail for assault and battery on Nakau.

Daniela was fined $6.10 for disturbing quiet of night.

Nawelu, defended by Mr. Thurston, was remanded on the charge of selling liquor without a license.

Kahai (k.) and Haupu (w.) were fined $31 and $16 respectively for adultery.

The total fines and forfeitures of the sitting amounted to $257.10.

CIVIL CASES.

Mokoi sued his son-in-law Andrew and daughter Lukai for a balance of $45 belonging to his grand-child. Holokahiki and Kaue appeared for plaintiff, Peterson for defendant. After hearing plaintiff's evidence the case was discontinued. Costs $3.25.

Tin Wo obtained judgment on a note for $22 against Tai Hung & Co., costs bringing it up to $27.90.

An action for debt of $16.92 by Thos. Rewcastle against Mrs. Maggie Corres was discontinued. Costs $3.

Assumpsit for $60, John Pinos against Kena, was discontinued. Costs $2.50.

M. McInerney obtained judgment for $6.25 against C. H. Judd, in a case continued from April 12th last. Costs $3.95 additional. The action was for the price of a pair of shoes, that defendant denied he owed to plaintiff.

School Exhibition.

The Haiku school, Miss Kinney, teacher, closed its term on last Monday with very interesting exercises. Willie Baldwin stood on the roll of honor as most perfect in deportment. Grace Dickey and Frank Baldwin had made greatest improvement in writing, the improvement being so marked in each that the committee was unable to decide between them.

The declamations were well rendered by all. Willie Baldwin perhaps did best in the recitation of the "Owl Critic in the Barber Shop." The gem of the exercises, however, was "The child's comedy of Dickey Dot and Dotty Dick," which was given in first-class style by Grace Dickey and Frank Baldwin, aged respectively seven and eight.

Belle Dickey and Fred Baldwin, aged six and five each, made her and his first effort in a very commendable manner.

Although Miss Kinney has only had the school a few months the improvement is very marked and she has the full confidence of children and parents.

PATERFAMILIAS.

Haiku, Maui, December 23.

Death of C. E. Henson.

Mr. Charles Edward Henson died at his home, Manoa, this city, yesterday morning of consumption. He was a native of Wisbeach, Norfolk, England, and had he lived would be forty-three years old on the 4th of January next. Mr. Henson has been engaged here in horticultural pursuits. He was a Free Mason and a member of St. Andrew's Cathedral choir, highly esteemed for his social qualities by all who knew him. The deceased leaves a young widow. His funeral will be from the above named church at ten this morning.

CHUN HOOK CAUGHT.

Seized by Officers on the Waikiki Road.

Mr. David Dayton, Deputy Marshal, when about sitting down to his tea table last evening, received information that Chun Hook would be found on the Waikiki road about eight o'clock. He quickly summoned Capt. Wm. Tell, Officer C. B. Reynolds of the Board of Health staff, and Policemen Puakalehua, Waihanalo and Waipa, taking them all in a wagon to near the place indicated. They left the wagon on the other side of Mr. A. Jaeger's, King street, and walked down the Waikiki road in a body. After going about 600 yards they saw the glimmer of a lighted match ahead, which was the preconcerted signal of the informer. In a few seconds a man approached them in the darkness, walking on the town side of the road as they strode along the other side. When the man was twenty feet or so away Mr. Dayton said "Go!" and the three policemen darted forward, followed by the others. Chun Hook, as it proved to be, made a rush to get over the fence into a banana patch. He had got on the fence when Waipa seized and hurled him to the ground, from which he rose only to be in the grasp of the three officers, and although he struggled to get away it was in vain. When driven to the Station many persons were granted the privilege of seeing him safely quartered in a cell.

While in prison Chun Hook had voluntarily submitted to the cutting of hair and queue, and when caught last night had on European clothes, so that he was pretty well disguised for the dark. When he slipped the gang Tuesday evening, December 7th, he climbed a tree and from his concealed perch watch the futile search below. He broke off the ball and chain the first night. His hiding place was a large gulch up Nuuanu Valley, from whence he emerged at night to get rice from fellow countrymen. No weapons were found on him. The Deputy Marshal is pleased at the smartness and courage of the three policemen who successfully grappled with the powerful criminal not knowing but that he was armed.
